Christa D'Angelica brings substantial experience to Pillinger Miller Tarallo LLP representing clients in various stages of civil litigation. She has successfully defended municipalities in Federal US 1983 suits and wrongful death actions, as well as building owners, contractors, and municipal agencies in New York Labor Law actions. Prior to her law firm employment, Christa served as an assistant law clerk for a judge with the New York State Supreme Court. In that role, she gained valuable insight into the way that judges approach decision-making and had the opportunity to compose draft judicial opinions on a broad range of civil matters.

Christa specializes in creative problem solving of complex legal issues through comprehensive research of novel issues in civil law. She has successfully mediated numerous civil cases and has significant experience in drafting motions and briefs, and arguing appeals. She has also defended a large multinational technology company in asbestos lawsuits brought across the United States by serving on its national counsel team.

Christa earned her Bachelors of Arts degree in philosophy at Fordham University. She was the first graduate of the joint degree program that Pace Law School offers in conjunction with Sarah Lawrence College. In order to complete the program, she simultaneously attended law school and graduate school to attain both a J.D. and Master's Degree in history.
