Offices: Philadelphia, PA

Aron is an associate in the Philadelphia office and is involved in all aspects of the litigation process. Prior to joining PMT, Aron was a litigator at a prominent regional defense firm that specializes in medical malpractice.

In law school, Aron was a member of the Moot Court Team, and he competed in the Prince Evidence Competition in Brooklyn, New York and the American Bar Association National Appellate Advocacy Competition in Portland, Oregon. Aron also served as an associate editor on the Drexel Law Review. Aron was inducted into the Order of the Barristers upon graduating law school – an honor recognizing the top writing and oral advocates in the graduating class.

Aron likes to use his skillset to help others and during law school successfully argued an asylum case before Federal Immigration Court as a member of the Drexel Federal Litigation and Appeals Clinic.
