Offices: Philadelphia, PA

Meaghan is a determined litigator, who dedicates herself to her clients. She handles a number of professional liability claims throughout Pennsylvania and New Jersey and is actively involved in all aspects of litigation from initiation to resolution. Prior to joining Pillinger, Miller, Tarallo Meaghan worked as an Assistant Public Defender in Berks County, P.A. While there she represented clients in a variety of criminal matters including but not limited to: robberies, burglaries, theft cases, child abuse, assaults, drug possession and deliveries, and DUI's. She has successfully represented clients throughout both jury and bench trials, as well as arguing for the dismissal of cases through pretrial motions. Meaghan is also a proven negotiator who has been able to bring about the resolution of a number of matters through her plea negotiations.

Meaghan earned her Bachelor of Arts degree in political science, cum laude, from Villanova University in 2009 and received her Juris Doctorate from Villanova University Charles Widger School of Law in 2012. Currently, Meaghan serves as an adjunct faculty member at her alma mater, where she enjoys teaching trial advocacy to 2L and 3L law students.

In her spare time, Meaghan enjoys golf and skiing.
